OUR WORLD IS CREATING A LEGACY

Their graduations are decades apart, but Elizabeth Campbell, '78, and 3L Kristina Meyer demonstrate a similar commitment to strengthening the Michigan Law community. As a Black Law Students Association (BLSA) board member, Elizabeth was devastated by the sudden death of 1L Butch Carpenter in 1977. The BLSA board honored Carpenter at its 1978 banquet and ultimately created the Alden J. "Butch" Carpenter Scholarship Fund—now valued at more than $1 million. Kristina, as a board member of the Outlaws, a group for LGBT students and allies, is creating a summer fellowship for Outlaws members. Fundraising kicked off at the Outlaws's inaugural Gayla this fall, and Kristina is excited about the fellowship's potential. "It's inspiring to see what BLSA and other affinity groups have accomplished," she says. "If we graduated without trying to make Outlaws stronger, there would be no point in participating." Besides her ongoing support of the Carpenter Fund and the Law School Fund, Elizabeth is a tri-chair of the Law School's African American Alumni Reunion; serves on the Alumni Association's Hargo Scholarship Fund committee; and opens doors for countless students and alumni in Houston and beyond—Kristina spent part of her summer as an associate at Elizabeth's firm. "I wouldn't have anything that I have today, careerwise, but for Michigan," Elizabeth says. "When you graduate, you don't leave Michigan. Michigan goes with you."

Elizabeth Campbell, '78, Partner and Chief Diversity Officer, Andrews Kurth LLP, Houston
Kristina Meyer, 3L, Houston

PRO BONO PROGRAM

Part of Michigan Law's heritage as one of the nation's great public institutions is a long tradition of serving the public in a variety of ways. To celebrate 150 years of producing lawyers committed to public service, we launched a voluntary 50-hour Pro Bono Pledge in 2009. Since then, our students have completed more than 55,000 hours of pro bono work; in the last academic year alone, 180 students participated, and 68 students completed their pledge.

OUR BUDGET

Did you know? To generate the same dollars that Law School Fund donors collectively gave in fiscal year 2015 would require more than $70 million in additional endowment money.

FY15 Operating Expenses	$66,039,088
FY15 Total Gifts	$13,309,096
FY15 Law School Fund Dollars Raised	$3,154,575

The Law School Fund is the oldest annual fund at the University of Michigan, and gifts to the Fund impact all aspects of the Law School's mission. The Law School Fund supports Michigan Law's traditional strengths while also providing seed funds that allow the Law School to capitalize on new opportunities.

MY WORLD IS ADVANCING OTHERS' INTERESTS

Before law school, James Eland served with the U.S. Coast Guard as a foreign vessel examiner and an oil pollution and hazardous materials investigator. That experience liaising between entities serves him well in his role as Law School Student Senate (LSSS) president and as a student-attorney and supervisor in the Unemployment Insurance Clinic. "I love being a voice for the students," says James, who someday wants to be a politician and plans to work at a firm in New York City after graduation. "I got involved with LSSS because I wanted to give back to the community that felt like home as soon as I arrived." Because Michigan is one of just two law schools to offer a 1L clinic, James could start being a voice for clients in his second semester as a law student. He's had an oral appellate argument in the Michigan Circuit Court, has performed direct and cross examinations in administrative hearings, and worked on an appeal to the Michigan Supreme Court. "These are experiences that I wouldn't be able to get in a firm until I'd worked there for several years," James says. "I want to be a lawyer so that I can advance the interests of others, and I get to do that immediately in my clinic."

James Eland, 2L, La Cañada Flintridge, California

MY WORLD IS GALVANIZING STUDENTS

Dayna Chikamoto first got involved with the Nannes 3L Challenge and U-M's Giving Blueday because she saw how they could benefit the student organizations that she led. The Nannes 3L Challenge, funded by John Nannes, '73, allows students to designate $250 to student orgs of their choice in exchange for their promise to give to the Law School after graduation; Giving Blueday is a university-wide day of giving where special hourly challenges benefit student groups. But for Dayna—who was president of the Asian Pacific American Law Students Association, a Student Funded Fellowships board member, and fundraising chair for Law Breaks—the purpose of those programs extends far beyond the immediate impact. She helped staff the Law School's annual Philanthropy Awareness Day and is the 2015-2016 Nannes 3L Challenge co-chair because "students don't realize how much of their education is subsidized by private donors. It's not just scholarships; it's the professors, the technology, the student orgs, and the clinics," she says. "So it's really important for students to get into the routine of giving back to the Law School, because giving impacts everything that goes on here."

Dayna Chikamoto, 3L
Honolulu

OUR WORLD IS ACCESSIBILITY

Laura Chamberlain, '84, and Mark Stein, '83, are the products of public universities and met one another through Michigan Law Review—where Mark edited Laura's note. They are passionate about making education available to all. "We are big advocates of public schools. One of our country's biggest problems is the gap between the people who can afford education and those who can't," says Laura, who mentors disadvantaged youth in New York City. "By giving to the Law School, we can help close that gap." Financially supporting the Law School is just one illustration of graduates' incredible loyalty, says Mark, who mentors current and former Michigan students the way Bob Fiske, '55, once mentored him. "He hired me, taught me how to practice law and about the importance of public service, and then encouraged me to go to the U.S. Attorney's Office, which laid the foundation for the rest of my career. It wouldn't have happened without the Michigan connection." Mark says people frequently ask him why Michigan alumni are so devoted, but Laura says it's apparent from the beginning. "The first day, you're in awe of your surroundings. I still am in awe every time I return to the Law Quad."

Laura Chamberlain, '84, Pre-publication review consultant, Time Inc.

Mark Stein, '83, Partner, Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP, New York, New York

CAVAEDIUM SOCIETY DONORS

The Law School Fund is an important source of discretionary funding for the Law School, and provides resources for student support, faculty recruitment and retention, and programmatic support. Because the Law School Fund impacts every element of life at Michigan Law, our leadership-level donors are members of the Cavaedium Society, which is Latin for "the inner part of a quadrangle."

We are grateful to the following donors who gave $2,500 or more to the Law School Fund during the 2015 fiscal year, and are thereby recognized as Cavaedium Society donors.

MY WORLD IS THE COURTROOM AS CLASSROOM

When Professor Paul Reingold started teaching in Michigan Law's clinics in 1982, he had no litigation budget; he had to "beg the administration" when a case had significant expenses. A gift in honor of deceased alum Alan Raywid, '57, changed that—the Raywid Fund, which was established in 1992, supported more than 50 cases in 2014-2015. It simultaneously provided students the valuable training that taking a case to court provides. "Most of our students are confident in their academic abilities but nervous about their ability to succeed in the real world of lawyering," says Paul, a past recipient of the L. Hart Wright Award for Excellence in Teaching. "In the clinics we focus not only on analytical skills but also on people, management, and writing skills—the things you need to succeed in practice. One of my goals is to teach habits of mind that will help students to learn on their own and to grow every day over the course of their careers." Paul says his annual gift to the Law School Fund symbolizes his long relationship with Michigan Law. "It's a way to say thanks for the opportunity to make a career here, and I think it is important to lead by example."

Paul Reingold

Clinical Professor of Law and Director of the Civil-Criminal Litigation Clinic

MY WORLD IS PAYING TRIBUTE

Although he lived in L.A., Ellisen Turner, '02, knew that returning home to Michigan was the obvious choice for law school. Now at admitted student receptions, he encourages other Californians to do likewise. "Michigan has always been an elite law school, yet it has never been exclusively held open to people of privilege," he says. "Michigan's commitment to access and diversity thrives today, along with its commitment to excellence, scholarship, and collegiality." The engineer-turned-IP-lawyer also appreciated Michigan's interdisciplinary approach, and says U-M's focus on entrepreneurship and collaborative research is one reason why he is a loyal Law School Fund donor. "By giving to the Law School I'm helping to develop well-rounded students, many of whom will go on to successfully practice law in a huge variety of disciplines," Ellisen says. As the recipient of a Darrow Scholarship sponsored by Bill Jentes, '56, Ellisen also wants to honor the support he received. "Donors like Bill impressed upon me the impact that giving back can have on law students who might otherwise not have the resources to attend Michigan. Giving also provides students the freedom to explore different areas of law and determine through experience where and how they want to practice."

MY WORLD IS THE STORY BEHIND THE SCORE

Rich Friedman is an expert on evidence and U.S. Supreme Court history, and has successfully argued two cases before the Court. He also is one of a few scholars developing a new field that examines sports and games as legal systems. "I've been a sports fan since I was a young boy, and I noticed that issues sometimes arose in sports that presented interesting legal questions," Rich says. "Gwen Torrence ran an amazing 220 meter race, far ahead of any of her competitors, but was disqualified for stepping on an inside lane. Was this the proper result?" His musings became one of the Law School's mini-seminars and now is a regular course. He also has drafted a book on the topic with a former student who is a law professor at the University of Pennsylvania. "None of this could have happened without the Law School's support," says Rich. "I give back to the Law School because it is a wonderful place that manages to be warm, civil, and humane without sacrificing an ounce of intellectual rigor. We give students a first-class legal education and also instill a strong sense that one can be both a first-class lawyer and a first-class person."

Richard Friedman, Alene and Allan F. Smith Professor of Law

MY WORLD IS MAKING AN IMPACT

Katie Ladewski, '10, wanted to use her law degree to directly improve other people's lives. A fair housing seminar at Michigan and a subsequent externship with Professor Judith Levy showed her a way to do so: Katie now works to enforce the Fair Housing Act and other civil rights laws. "I have the privilege of working on cases that make a real difference to real people, which is a great feeling," she says. At Michigan, Katie sang with the Headnotes a cappella group and was on Michigan Law Review—two student organizations supported by the Law School Fund, to which Katie gives annually. "Headnotes was a great way to blow off steam and get to know my classmates in a totally different way," she says, "while Law Review gave me the chance, while still a student, to also be a leader and a professional." By supporting the Law School Fund and volunteering with the Alumni-Student Mentoring Program, Katie wants to keep the Law School the strong, vibrant place she remembers. "The education and camaraderie I enjoyed as a student, the role alumni played in my experience, and the network that I continue to enjoy in D.C. make me want to pay it forward."

MY WORLD IS COMMUNITY BUILDING

As president of the Latino Law Students Association (LLSA), Daniela Tagtachian wanted to strengthen the organization's student-alumni network. She spearheaded Michigan Law's inaugural summer networking reception in Miami and is working to formalize an alumni group in her hometown. "Michigan alumni are so enthusiastic, and they are an incredible resource for students," she says. An important common bond for Michigan Law's Latino alumni and students is the annual Juan Luis Tienda Scholarship Banquet, and as a past awardee, Daniela knows how special it is to win. "I was floored, and when I met some of the past winners and learned about their careers, I realized what amazing company I was in," she says. Daniela, who was a summer associate at Hogan Lovells, will be returning to the firm after graduation. She also plans to give back to the community in her career and is particularly interested in helping human trafficking victims and children in the care of the state. Her work at Michigan's Human Trafficking Clinic and Pediatric Advocacy Clinic confirmed her passions and trained her to handle difficult cases. "Fighting for those who cannot fight for themselves is an integral part of being a lawyer," she says.

THANK YOU

Dear Friend of Michigan Law,

Many things make Michigan one of the world's great law schools, including talented students, brilliant faculty, and unparalleled learning opportunities. Another important element of our greatness is the strength of our alumni community. The Annual Report of Giving celebrates the collective strength of our alumni in support of all that makes our Law School exceptional. I am grateful to count you among our supporters this past year.

We have reached the halfway point of the Victors for Michigan campaign—definitely a cause for celebration. With your help, we have created new scholarship funds, guaranteed summer funding for our 1Ls, strengthened our Debt Management Program, endowed new professorships, renovated the Lawyers Club, launched new clinics, and more. Yet work remains to be done. Reaching our $200 million campaign goal is important because it will help us to keep Michigan Law accessible to the best of the best students, and to give them an educational experience that will prepare them to be exemplary lawyers. It will require a true show of strength from our alumni and friends to get us to our goal, and your commitment to making a gift each year to the Law School Fund is an important step.

Everything that makes Michigan Law great would not be possible without the generosity that you and the others whose names you've just read have demonstrated over the past year. We recruit the best students because they are drawn to the quality of our faculty, the breadth of our curriculum, the vibrancy of our community, the innovative nature of our experiential learning opportunities, and our ability to offer financial assistance both during and after their time in the Quad. All of those elements are supported by the Law School Fund and annual gifts like yours.

The Annual Report of Giving gets at the heart of why Michigan Law is so special—it illustrates that our Law School is a lifelong association, and that a profound desire to give back to the Law School permeates graduates of all ages, locations, and career paths. Whether you are well-established in your career or just starting out, you all have a part to play in helping Michigan Law achieve its ambitious goals in the Victors for Michigan campaign. And every gift really, truly matters.

Thank you for investing in the ongoing strength of Michigan Law.

Sincerely,

OUR WORLD IS RECONNECTING

Busy careers and busy children would be an excuse for Kimberly Alcantara, '93, and Oscar Alcantara, '93, to lose touch with classmates—or rely on Facebook for updates. But the Alcantaras, who have been active on reunion committees, see value in face-to-face catchups. "Going back for reunions is 'me' time," says Kimberly. "It's meaningful and enriching to connect with classmates, and I love seeing people's different trajectories. It gives me ideas. Personally and professionally, I take a lot away from reunions." In Chicago, they are part of a strong Michigan network, which includes Oscar's Michigan Law orientation partner, David Morrison, '93, now a fellow partner at his firm. "Being where I am is a natural extension of my experience in Ann Arbor," Oscar says. Kimberly and Oscar give to the Law School Fund annually, and have made leadership-level pledges to the Fund to celebrate past reunions. They do so to help other students benefit from attending Michigan, and because of a sense of professional obligation. "Lawyers have a responsibility to give back to their communities," says Oscar. "Contributing to our alma mater is an important way we can do that."
